division in some topics. So if you do not know how to solve such problems, you may try . And one more way to solve such type of problems is the one that modern abc of chemistry for class 11 contains. You can solve it by your own try. A: Looks like all the "annotations" are printed backwards. The table of contents is printed at the beginning, and so are the table of contents pages which has to be flipped upside down. Your book does not have any information about the paper it is printed on. Was this a typo when the book was printed? The inside page (3rd from the front) of the paperback copy should be printed along with the table of contents, and the inside pages of each chapter (front and back). This would tell you the paper type. --- title: layout: api --- # pxr/usd/transaction/bindingDefinition.h The binding definition defines, and thereby sets, the "hard-coded" Binding(s) used in a given Transaction(/pxr/usd/reference/transaction.html). As such, it is read-only. The `bindingDefinition` property is read-only. ## Syntax ``C++ ; `` ## Members
