Read more » "Look, Tiger, over there!" a couple of kids gleefully shout out from the crowd. Tiger laughs. "I love the crowd," he says. "When I first started playing this golf game, I couldn't believe how much I liked the crowd. I think the crowd was the most fun part of the game. Just like the real pro tours, we had the airport crowd cheering, the Masters crowd and the U.S. Open crowd. It's cool when the crowd plays an active role. Sometimes the crowd doesn't want to follow you, though. They really don't. If you take even better shots, they complain, and you know what? I mean, it's supposed to be fun. You're supposed to be having fun! They boo the heck out of you and say all kinds of stuff you can't believe." "How are you going to make the crowd fun?" I ask. Tiger thinks for a second. "One of the things I did was I made the crowd come out of the woodwork. I'm playing Augusta National in the game, and when you play there, the crowd is just incredible. The guys from the club, they come out and play golf with you. I think they go down there to hang out, and they throw the best heckles and say the dumbest things. It's a lot of fun to be there."
