I know the density of the universe is 1.The universe is expanding and a galaxy may be a strong source of gravity.So I am asking you about the number of galaxies in the universe. A: The number of galaxies is much larger than the number of stars or stellar clusters. There are different estimations of the number of galaxies of different sizes. For big galaxies (about 10^{13} - 10^{14} solar masses) in clusters is 6.3×10^4 . For small galaxies in the Virgo Cluster is 1.6×10^4 . And there are 9.5×10^6 galaxies with 10^9 "Not that you notice." "You hate other races." "They always want to assert their superiority over you." "It's the way you are." "You think so?" "How about me going like that?" "Too white!" "Let's see yours." "We'll paint it." "And now you." "What have you got?" "Too yellow!" "White's white." "Any more?" "Your hair matches." "Look!" "A real Indian!" "And this is yours?" "You want a different one?" "How about yours?" "Not bad." "Come on, beautiful!" "You can do it." "Come on!" "Come on!" "Come on!" "Liar!" "They all move like this." "You're too rusty." "Let's go again." "All right, last time." "Come on!" "Come on!" "You have to keep up!" "Come on!" "Look, you've got to be balanced!" "
