Technical Field The present invention relates to a semiconductor device and an electronic apparatus. 2. Related Art In recent years, with an increase in the amount of data handled by information devices, such as PCs (Personal Computer), HDDs (Hard Disk Drives), smartphones, or cellular phones, a portable electronic apparatus with a battery as a power source tends to have a larger capacity. With the increasing capacity of the battery, it is also required that an electronic apparatus also has a larger capacity. Therefore, the electronic apparatus with a large capacity is desired. In particular, an electronic apparatus that uses a non-volatile memory, such as a flash memory, as an information storage medium is required to have a large capacity. Thus, as the electronic apparatus with a large capacity, a semiconductor device such as a NAND flash memory, in which the number of terminals is increased and the size of a package is reduced, is used. However, in the semiconductor device, it is difficult to reduce the size of the package and to realize a reduction in cost due to an increase in the number of components. In order to solve this problem, a semiconductor device is proposed which is configured to electrically connect a plurality of semiconductor chips to a substrate (for example, refer to JP-A-2007-109952). According to JP-A-2007-109952, the plurality of semiconductor chips can be electrically connected to the substrate. Thus, the plurality of semiconductor chips can be provided on the substrate. As a result, the electronic apparatus with a large
