The player is made to relive the actual feeling of playing football, and all vital game-match scenarios are played with the same player speed, acceleration, power, balance, agility, stamina and movement. This technology creates a level of realism for players that is unparalleled in the video game industry, and players are able to feel as if they are playing with their real-world team mates. The essence of high-intensity football is to give both offensive and defensive players the best possible ball control, rather than a player being forced to choose the most suitable skill to use. The new 'FIFA Training' mode adds to the player's development experience by providing an opportunity to improve each of the 21 available attributes, while the 9 international and 19 national teams in 'FIFA Ultimate Team' have also been enhanced, along with changes to the League & Cup rules. FIFA 20 introduced new physics improvements to add more excitement and realism into gameplay. The new 'New Direction' system allows the game to react to player actions in a more intelligent way, the field of play is clearer in the highest speeds and more precise in the d-pads, and ball responsiveness is more controllable. The game also includes new features for players including "Fastest Acceleration", "Most consistent Deceleration" and "Most accurate Dribbling". [PIC] FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay.
